

My two Boys are both at Elloughton Primary School. I am a passionate believer of the importance of a sound education. Children, be they from a privileged or disadvantaged background, must be encouraged to develop their individual talents to the full.

My true belief is that it is not about getting grades but about a true education covering everything that will allow children to reach their potential, both in terms of their academic success and their personal well-being.

I am a qualified Chemist having worked in both education and industry. I am also enthusiastic about sports and the arts being fully supported in schools.

David Rocket